Illinois State Officials are Called to Account

SMALL AND STERLING INCLUDED IN LIST OF DEFENDANTS.

$2,500,000 SHORT?
Accounting Demanded; Small Case Disclosures Furnish Basis.

(By Associated Press.)
Springfield, Ill.—Suits for accounting against five former state treasurers, alleging shortages of approximately $2,500,000, were started Saturday by Attorney General E. J. Brundage.

The suits cover the six terms preceding that of the present treasurer, Edward E. Miller and are directed against all state treasurers who held office between 1905 and 1921.

Disclosures made through the investigation of the state treasury which resulted in indictment of Gov. Small, Lieutenant Governor Sterling and Vernon S. Curtis, banking associate of Governor Small, last July, furnished the evidence on which the suits were based, the attorney general's office announced.

The suit filed Saturday against Lieutenant Governor Sterling, alleges that $10,000,000 of state money used by Treasurer Len Small under the late Senator E. C. Curtis for their own personal profit, continued under the control of Curtis after Sterling's death.

Private Use Charged.
The bill alleges that, shortly after Small became treasurer in 1917, he entered into a scheme with Curtis to use large sums of money for their own private gains.

Small, at the expiration of his term, the bill continues, removed from the treasurer's office, books and records relating to deposits, loans and interest charges that Curtis collected approximately $2,000,000 interest from the packers.

The particulars of the civil suits are similar to and in fact cover the same charges made in the criminal cases pending against Small and Sterling and Curtis, who are charged with the late senator, whose death occurred in March 1920.

All of the bills charge that the five former treasurers made only token reports on interest earnings during their terms; that the interest accounts were not itemized but submitted in lump sum.

Interest Turned Over.
Interest turned over to the state by these former treasurers, according to figures given by Attorney General Brundage are as follows:

Russell (1905-11), $90,306.42;
Mitchell (1911-13), $166,221.93;
Ryan (1913-17), $180,609.89;
Small (1917-19), $450,010.12;
Sterling (1919-21), $906,121.55.

The bill against Russell, Ryan and Mitchell contains substantially the same general charges except as to amounts.

FIVE GET HEARING AS RAIL BANDITS

Three Whites, Two Negroes Charged With Paxton, Ill., Robbery.

Terre Haute, Ind.—Five men, two of whom were charged with the robbery of a train at Paxton, Ill., were given a hearing Saturday by United States Commissioner C. R. Randall on a charge of being members of a gang of bandits who, on Nov. 7, held up and robbed a train at Paxton, Ill.

The men were lodged in jail here Friday night. They previously were arrested at Indianapolis, Nov. 14, in connection with the death of Steve Ferguson, who was found dead near Rockville, Ind. Those under arrest are James Hill, 25; Joseph Burnett, 26; Frank Wolfe, 18; all white; Vern Jones, 25 and Garrett Osborn, 27, negroes.

Post office inspectors said Saturday sufficient evidence had been obtained to send the prisoners to Illinois for trial.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.
Copyright 1921, by Janesville Gazette.

Washington—Lord Curzon's speech warning France that a policy of isolation on her part may constitute a danger to the peace of the world is the sensation of the day here.

American officials were cautious about explaining its significance, though they admitted it may prove a danger to the peace of the world. The Washington conference on limitation of armament.

The speech of the British foreign minister is the direct outgrowth of what transpired at the secret session of the armament committee of five powers last Wednesday.

On the day after Premier Briand, expecting a resolution of endorsement of French policy, was disappointed. He was told that the other powers and in a speech that somewhat damaged them proceeded to interpret his remarks of Mr. Briand and Mr. Hughes in a way that carried a much more thorough approval of French policy than was intended by the carefully qualified words of both the British and American delegations.

Warning, Though Curzon To offset any exaggerated impressions which the French might possibly have of the responses made to Premier Briand's speech, the British very much. Lord Curzon's foreign minister has now issued a warning in such unequivocal terms as is expected by British officials to prevent any misunderstanding.

Indeed, the tendency of France, to play a lone hand outside the family of nations, and particularly the limitations of an unwillingness to subscribe to a definite action on naval armament, as well as a refusal to agree to a reduction of land armament while Germany and Russia are uncertain quantities, has irritated the British very much.

Lord Curzon's warning that the strength and protection of the French cause does not consist of French arms but on the conscience of the world, in which he included the United States, as well as European powers, was interpreted here as a direct contradiction of Premier Briand's argument Tuesday that the French army alone was the reason France was not invaded by Germany.

WILL WITHDRAW POSTOFFICES IN CHINA, AGREEMENT

INFORMAL ACCEPTANCE BY COMMITTEE ANNOUNCED.

ACT NOT FINAL Sub-Committee Will Work Out Details of Plan for Conference.

(By Associated Press.)
Washington.—Withdrawal of foreign postoffices in China was informally agreed to in principle Saturday by the Far Eastern committee of the Washington conference, and a resolution to that effect will be drafted by a sub-committee.

The question of extra territoriality, the gradual abolition of which was agreed to in principle Friday, was not considered by the nine nations represented in the Far Eastern committee, at Saturday's sitting.

The informal agreement with respect to withdrawal of postal services, it was said, was not final, but the sub-committee dealing with it will be guided by the general expressions favorable to that end.

Naval Program Progresses.
So much progress has been made by the naval experts examining details of the American reduction plan that some of the arms delegates expect another plenary session may be held soon to permit Japan and Great Britain to submit their counter proposals in concrete form.

The American and British naval experts were said Saturday virtually to have completed their examination of the technical points involved in Secretary Hughes' proposals. The Japanese, however, were still considering the figures.

The British were said to feel that highly satisfactory progress has been made, but their spokesmen would not indicate the trend of the expert examinations.

Went U-Boat Action.
There is strong belief in Great Britain, it was said, that the conference will not be an unqualified success. A serious action is taken to curb size and nature of future "under sea" navies, similar to the steps proposed as to surface fleets.

The statement that British experts were ready to present their findings to the conference follows the assertion Friday that the American group has found nothing in the figures proposed by the Japanese to warrant any departure from the American schedule of tonnage.

Meeting Announced.
Negotiations proceeding in an atmosphere of friendliness, increasing importance attached to its outcome Saturday as a result of the informal expressed hopes of President Harding, that the conference might lay the foundation for a continuing series of conferences, to perpetuate a closer international accord.

The president's plan, which has been offered only as a personal suggestion to some of the foreign delegates, who have generally approved it, is an outstanding topic of discussion in conference circles.

The Heavens in December

OF THE COLUMBIAN UNIVERSITY OBSERVATORY, STAFF.

The last month of the year finds the planets, at least all those which make fine objects of observation for the unaided eye, grouped together in the morning sky. One must look down to observe this rather rare spectacle. But if the winter evening sky now is devoid of bright stars, it is not so rich in stellar magnitudes of the first magnitude that it can hardly be said to suffer from the absence of the "wanderers."

At the west the great triangle marked out by Vega in Lyra, by Deneb in Cygnus and by Altair in Aquila, the latter is just above the horizon, though the latter is presently to set just after midnight. The Great Square in Pegasus will be found about half way between the meridian and the western horizon. Excellent positions for observation. Look toward the eastern half of the sky, which fairly glitters with brilliant celestial lights. Ten first-magnitude stars are shown there, their exact positions on the map.

Capella, the She-Goat.—Nearest the zenith is the white star Capella in the constellation Auriga. Later in the evening it will pass very close to the overhead pole star. It is the brightest star in the constellation and is the nearest to the North Pole, and therefore, visible in our latitudes for a greater part of the year than any other star. It is so bright that it is said to be visible in the light of the sun. The spectrum of the two stars, Sun and Capella, are so similar that it is said that the sun is only one among a multitude of stars very similar, and of must resemble one another greatly in physical characteristics.

The distance of Capella from us is about thirty-six light years. It is taken that thirty six years to travel an enormous distance—in this spite of its great velocity of 136,000 miles per second we can calculate, therefore, that Capella is about equal to the sun in its capacity to radiate light and heat. If we were living on a planet passing along an orbit around Capella the sun would appear about the size of a star of the first magnitude, just above the limit of visibility. The spectroscopic has shown that this star is really a system of two

Six of Jamesville's fair young women, pupils of the Jamesville high school, declared their independence from troublesome skirts and came out openly in favor of "knickers" Friday.

Attired in khaki army trousers with heavy green woolen stockings, and heavy coats, they started the male population by hiking to the city square. The girls use the part of what was formerly considered only male attire, for hiking only. As yet it has not invaded the high school. The girls in the city square have found it an advantage for hiking in the "knickers."

AT THE THEATRES

"DECEPTION" AT THE MYERS.—Presenting a historical figure which for nearly four hundred years has been the subject of diverse discussion and which is familiar to every student of English and American history, the play "Deception" is a powerful and compelling manner with the pathetic love story of King Henry VIII and the mother of Queen Elizabeth. Independent of its historical interest, the play itself concerns a woman who loved and who fell victim to the loves of two other men, the great Duke of Norfolk, the Duke of Norfolk, and the Duke of Norfolk.

The direction of "Deception" was in the hands of Mr. J. H. Hatterman, who has been so successful in his other productions. "Nor me, either," his friend interposed hurriedly. "I don't worry about anything like that." Still, if I was you I wouldn't tell. She's only a girl, we got to remember."

"Yes," said Herbert. "That's the way I look at it, Henry; and the way I look at it is just simply this: Look at she's a girl, why simply let her go. You can't tell what she'd do, and so what's the use to go and tell on a girl?"

"That's the way I look at it," Henry agreed. "What's the use? If I was in your place, I'd act just the same way you do."

"Well," said Herbert. "I guess I better go on home, Henry. It's a good while after dark."

"You're making a big mistake," Henry Rooter said. "You better stay. You won't see any apple dumplings. I bet a hundred dollars! You better come on home with me."

Mourne.—District Attorney H. B. Caradine, speaking before the Green county board here this week urged the appointment of a constant speed patrolman to help put a stop to the prevalence of speeding. He argued that it would be prohibitive as well as exceedingly expensive to have a motorcycle officer to patrol the county highways. He suggested that for efficiency, the officer's identity be concealed for the time at least.

JASTROW ASKED FOR PROOF—NOT WORDS

More Tests Are Planned to Establish Truth for Wonder Girl.

Additional tests and examinations will be made to establish the truth whether Willette Huggins—marvel girl at the Wisconsin state school for the blind in Janesville—is really deaf and blind. Janesville people who know the girl, who have taken part in the tests made in the past, or who have made medical examinations, have been convinced that the little Huggins girl is really deaf and blind.

Jastrow, since his published statements declaring that Willette Huggins was both deaf and blind, has been called upon to furnish definite proof—other than words—to back his statements. "Those interested in the career of Willette Huggins," he is quoted as saying, "are entitled to know the truth about the girl, who has taken part in the tests made in the past, or who have made medical examinations, have been convinced that the little Huggins girl is really deaf and blind."

Auction Bridge—No. 2

"There is a tide in the affairs of men, which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune."

Play to the score. This is the tide by which to reckon how many tricks are needed to win the game and rubber, which is the fortune of the play. Winning the rubber is the goal, as 250 points bonus is given for this.

The making of the trump is materially influenced by the state of the score. A few tricks may be dropped in the play of the hand, but the loss of 500 points may result in an untrump, and therefore the possibility of securing the honor count is very important, and should be the first consideration.

No-trump is recognized by expert or sound bidders as most advantageous, because it prevents a strong from holding of spades or hearts should be declared rather than a doubtful no-trump.

It is useless to attempt to play good Auction without a knowledge of the score. If the score warrants the dealer in taking a chance at a weak make, the no-trump declaration is best, for the Dummy cards will present a wider field for assistance, as any good suit is available.

Jacks, tens, and nines are of great assistance in a no-trump make. A guarded honor of a protected suit is supposed to imply a certain trick, but a King once guarded, or a Queen twice guarded, may be led through and captured, especially when in the Dummy hand and exposed.

Standard for No-Trump Make.
1. Four Aces, regardless of the rest of the holding.
2. Three Aces, unless holding four honors in either of the major suits (Spades or Hearts).

can Whist, by George M. Potters, fully explains its popularity and may well be applied to Auction.
"Auction Bridge is a recreational work, enjoyable labor—paradoxical as that may sound. Its riddle is fascinating; its practice is intelligent employment; its play, mathematical induction; its results intellectual gain."

Then again, Auction is very much like the ground ivy, spreading over the world, taking deep root, covering many differences of the various nations, and making them all akin with its magic touch.

It is not always the prime object to win the declaration made. Frequently the best move is to play to prevent the opponents from winning the make, thereby making game and possibly the rubber.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Q. Holding the following hand, what should the dealer bid? Spades—Jack, Ten, and one small card; Hearts—Ace, Queen, Jack, and one small card; Diamonds—Ace, and two small cards; Clubs—Ace, Jack, and one small card.
A. No-Trump. Three Aces, quite weak, having no long suit, is called "plain bid" or "safe bid."

Q. What is meant by Grand Slam?
A. When partners win all 13 tricks of a deal it is called a Grand Slam. A bonus of 100 points is added to the honor score for winning a Grand Slam.

Q. What is meant by Little Slam?
A. When partners win 12 tricks of a deal, it is called a Little Slam. A bonus of 50 points is added to the honor score for winning a Little Slam.

Q. Can opponents ever make a Grand or Little Slam?
A. It has on very rare occasions occurred, but not when the bid of the declarant was a sound make.

ITALIAN DELEGATE IS JOURNALIST OF GREAT INFLUENCE

Luigi Albertini, Italian delegate to the arms conference, has been editor of the Milan Corriere della Sera since 1900, and is said to have made it "the most important Italian paper." He was one of the chief promoters of Italy's intervention in the world war, and neutralist senators, according to the English "Who's Who," "fiercely contested his nomination, but they were defeated."

Iowa County Ousts Agent

Mineral Point. Abolishment of the office of the Iowa county agricultural agent of the county board because of the expense has met with considerable criticism by the farmers. W. O. Trewick, Dodgeville farmer, in speaking of the work points out that the direct cost of maintaining the office of county agent is about 45 cents per farm, or less than 8 cents per capita.

"They have dealt the farmers of Iowa county a severe blow," Mr. Trewick declares.

Crapser Greatest Scorer of Blues During Grid Season

BLUE OUTFIT HAD BEST SEASON IN OVER EIGHT YEARS

Janesville's 1921 high school gridiron team has passed into history. Some history it has, too.

Not since 1913, when the Blues played Oshkosh for the state championship and lost 28 to 0, has there been a real football squad at the local institution until this year. In 1920, things commenced to change and the team won its first game for several seasons. This year it went through the schedule winning a majority.

Wan Six Games

The Blues were successful in capturing six victories—all in a row. They lost only two, reversing the result of a year ago.

During the season, the local players were rated up 150 points to their opponents' 35. This is how they did it:

Credit to Coaches

Much credit in bringing about such a new state of affairs in Blue athletics is due to this year to the fact that 45 men were out for the first practice. There remained sufficient to form three teams. This has given every possible opportunity to practice, mauling and the selection of players, mauling and the selection of players, mauling and the selection of players.

A much improved situation with the coaching problem has aided materially. Coaches McDonald and Lamoreaux with Head Coach Reyner had the assistance of Dr. L. J. Woodworth and Charles E. Fitch. This year, the Blues have been coached by a team of specialists in certain departments in which they attempted to improve faults while McDonald had control of the running of the game. Lamoreaux put out Edgerton's crack team of a few years ago. Reyner was last year's coach at Woodworth was a former coach at Marquette and Fitch coached on the Pacific coast.

Good Start in 1922

Announcement that 12 of the men will graduate in February and June, need not spoil hopes for next year. Around Young, Knipp, Conry, R. Leary and Seaman an excellent team can be formed. With the greater aid of the student body and the continued assistance of the citizens, the record can be carried forward. Knipp has been an exceedingly valuable man at quarter. Young, without a doubt is one of the greatest full backs the school has had and will constantly develop. Conry, entirely green at the start of the season, appears to be a man who will make a name for himself in the game. He is a natural football player and has covered his position at center with glory. R. Leary is just coming into his own, but has showed good stuff in the last two games. Seaman will prove a valuable asset.

Crapser Leading Scorer

Crapser, end, was the greatest individual scorer of the year. He made five touchdowns for 36 points. He also pulled off the longest run in the Jefferson game for 100 yards in the Jefferson game for touchdown. The individual scoring:

	TD	PG	MG	Total
Crapser.....	5	0	0	36
Stoldt.....	4	0	0	24
Knipp.....	1	13	0	10
McCluskey.....	3	0	0	18
J. Casey.....	3	0	0	18
Knipp.....	0	2	12	6
Young.....	1	0	0	6
Townsend.....	1	0	0	6

McCluskey's Long Run

In addition to Crapser's run of two-thirds of the field, Lane was the greatest open field sprinter. He made a run of 87 yards for touchdown in the Jefferson game. 25 in the first Milton Union battle and 20 in the Monroe game. The longest run was made by McCluskey who shot through a hole for 50 yards in the Edgerton game although not being able to score. Stoldt made two long runs, 30 and 23 yards, for scores in the second Milton Union game. Griley tore off a 25 yard pass in the Wisconsin high school circles. He made two of 35 yards. One of them in the Beloit game last Saturday was the most beautiful of the year. The other was in the Monroe game and resulted in a score. A 25 yard pass in one of the Milton games resulted in a touchdown. He also tossed the pigskin 20 yards in the first Milton game.

Stoldt Made Most Yards

Stoldt made more yards in any single game than any other player on the squad. In the Monroe game, he was selected to lead his former team-mates, he tore through tackle and around end time and again for a total of 86 yards. His interference was the cause of most of the time by John Young.

This chap Young was the star of the team. Starting the season by running too high, he gradually acquired the ability to give his greatest work was in the game with Beloit last week when he dived through for steady gains and on one occasion carried half of the Purple team back alone for a four yard loss.

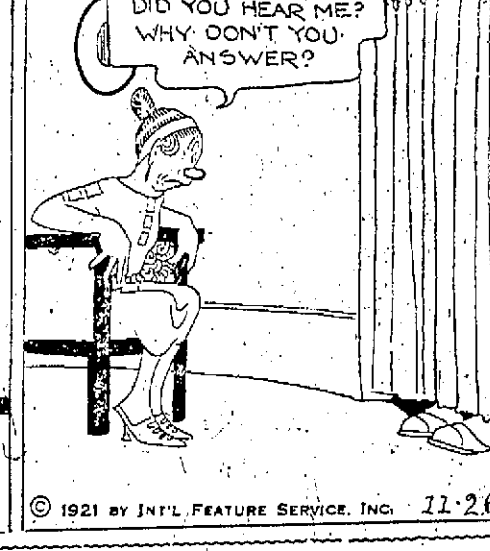

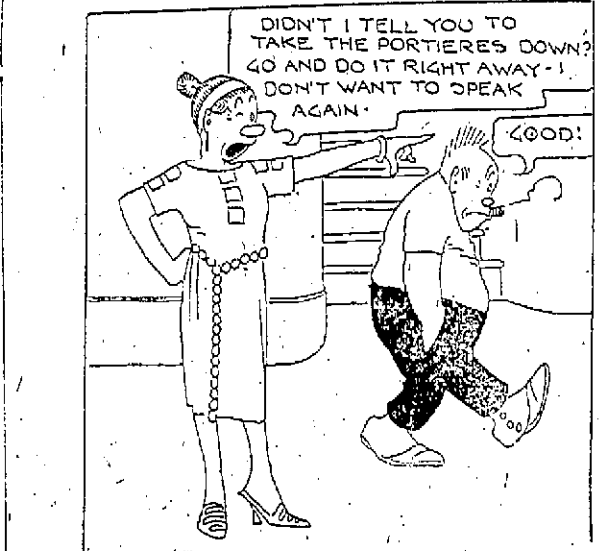

Griley covered himself with honors as captain and tackle. A hard, nifty player, he formed the backbone of the line with Schulz, guard, and Conry, center. However, like most of the Blue players, he was best on the offensive than on the defensive. He was selected to lead the team's kicking and made 13 out of 20 goals from touchdown, not such a bad record. He was fair on exchange of punts.

Charles Knipp made a clever quarterback for the local high school squad. He ran the team with steady precision. He should work into a star that will be watched by colleges before his service with the Blues comes to a conclusion. He is a smart passer, which showed effectively on the few dry days the team had this year. His only fault was in returning punts.

Next in line comes McCluskey, who alternated at end and half. He was a flashy player, deer-like on his feet and good for gains once he had an open field. Lane, another who alternated at end and half, was dependable.

Granger, like Schulz, did not make the highlight, due to his position, but he was in the heap

BRINGING UP FATHER

10 ARE KILLED IN GRID GAMES

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Chicago—Football claimed 10 victims during 1921 season which closed with Thanksgiving day games according to reports to the Associated Press Saturday.

The death list was three less than 1920 and three above the toll of two years ago. Ten lives were lost as a result of games in 1918, 12 in 1917, 18 in 1916 and 15 in 1915.

As in former years, the majority of youths killed were members of high school teams. The figures apparently uphold the contention of football experts that proper training and physical condition greatly minimize the danger of the game, for only one of the players killed was a member of a college eleven. One was a semi-pro (Milwaukee) player one a member of a naval team and the remainder were high school or amateur players who did not receive the training and physical inspections given in colleges.

With one exception, none of the victims was more than 20 years old.

The race in the Industrial-Commercial bowling league has developed in a stiff battle for first place. Two upsets came Friday night.

Leaving their motes after working until close to 9 p. m. on a special Saturday edition, the Gazette Pin Knives dropped three straight games to the Woolen Mills of the West Side alley. As a result, the Woolen Mills went into first by a one game margin and the newspapermen took a full into third. Moved to the Woolen Mills hit 244 for high score.

Developing engine trouble, the Cadillac couldn't make any of the grades and dropped everything to the American Railway Express. This showing puts the expression in second and lands the Cadillac in a tie for fourth with the Janesville Electric. The last game was a tie. When attempts to roll it off Express finally came out on top. Taking one game out of the Janesville Electric, Knipp has condition. The Golden Eagle battled to two victories over the Postwick. The Post Office for three wins, one by a quartet of maples, with Bruce hitting 208.

Tad Jones. Yale's failure to overcome its jinx and defeat Harvard after its most successful season in years was a sad blow to the sons of Old Eli. But the Crimson victory has not hurt Jones' prestige or detracted from the wonders Jones worked with the Yale team his year. Tad had made a winning team out of only fair material. The team was young—many of the players being second year men. Against Harvard's veteran, perfectly developed machine Tad's youngsters fell.

OREGON HIGH PLANS BIG BASKET YEAR

Oregon—Though only one member of last year's team is back in school, prospects are fairly good for a successful basketball season at Oregon high this winter. The squad has been practicing about three weeks and has a ready player on the practice game with the Pilgrim C. E. five of Madison. The first game of the regular schedule will be with Deerfield high school here next Saturday, Dec. 2. N. D. Miller, a graduate of Milton college, is coaching Oregon this year.

The Unknown— the Forgotten

On Nov. 11, 1916, a young man by the name of William Smith, consequently more popularly dubbed "Bill," in the circle of his intimates, rocklessly, serene, played his mandolin in the corner drug store of a small Connecticut town. It was a busy day. The election returns were still in the air, the President still in the balance. Whether or no there was to be a change of tenants in the White House was yet a debatable problem.

"He kept us out of war, Woodrow did," said old Fred Turner, as he gulped down a third glass of that popular beverage known as "colic." "Aw, come off," said someone else. "The trouble with the country is that it hasn't gone into the war soon enough. If Hughes gets in we'll go all right, and a damned good thing it'll be too." And so it went on. William Smith turned on siphons and ladled out creams and kidded the flappers who strolled in after the pictures. And along about ten o'clock, Bill cleaned up the fountain and put out the lights and stopped for a word with Rosie White before he turned in for the night in Mrs. Logan's rooming house.

On Nov. 11, 1917, Corporal Bill Smith of the United States Army, sat on the edge of his cot at Camp Devens and dreamed a dream. He was a shapely soldier, had Rosie White had sent him with the last shipment of fudge and fags. Bill had changed. He was bigger and broader and wilder and huskier. Five months of drill and army routine had made a first-class soldier of him.

Over on the other side of the barracks someone called out, "Hyer, Shimp, how'd you get in here?" Lavey, who'd ever thought a year ago this time he'd be in this here new "Merican Army and about to sail the briny," Gosh, who'd thought it, "Can the talk, you guys, and shut up."

On Nov. 11, 1918, Corporal Bill Smith, minus a leg, and two months of hospital reports as a "serious case," lay white and silent in the ward of a Paris hospital that had been a public school. There were white sheets around his head and the ward was quiet except for the low-spoken directions of doctors or the calm voices of nurses. "This was the critical ward."

Across the ward, through a window by a blackboard, and through the window he could see two high Gothic spires, his one and only thought were sluggish and slow and he coughed a good deal, and it hurt him. Somehow, even when the nurse came around, he did not feel alone. Suddenly into his dim consciousness there came a sound of bells and cannon and cheering and singing. It was the Armistice. In the old schoolyard the boys were singing "The Star-Spangled Banner" and a band somewhere was playing the "Maiden" and a nurse was laughing in the corridor outside.

"Bill," heard someone whisper, "War's over! Gosh, kid, hear that? War's over!"

On Nov. 11, 1919, Bill Smith, discharged soldier, stumped his way down the main street of the Connecticut town in which he lived. It might be. Bill had no plans. The old job at the fountain was being dispensed by tow-headed, sandy-ticked, and besides, a man with only one real leg can't stand up all day.

He stumped along towards the Kruger Chemical Works, stopping now and then to get his breath. On the way he passed Rosie's house and he grinned to himself. Rosie was married to Jack Lumsden these two years, and wheeled a baby to the pictures almost every day. But that didn't worry Bill much. Most of the fellows that had gone over had lost their girls to some guy or another.

He asked for Mr. Kruger himself. "Sit down," he said to Bill, and then when he had asked a lot of questions about the war, he said, "Sorry, Smith, you know our policy of doing everything for you, but you chaps who fought so nobly ever there, but business is sneaking up and I haven't a thing in the place you can do."

On Nov. 11th, 1920, there was a parade, and Bill tried to march. He was a shapely soldier, had Rosie White had sent him with the last shipment of fudge and fags. Bill had changed. He was bigger and broader and wilder and huskier. Five months of drill and army routine had made a first-class soldier of him.

On Nov. 11th, 1921, Bill Smith, ex-corporal United States Army, died in the hopeless ward of a great hospital. For weeks he had lain there, fevered and racked with a paroxysm of coughing, now silent, and eyes fixed on the ceiling, living in the past. For, indeed, Henderson, who could still walk about, told him that Poch had arrived in America, and for a whole day Bill thought over and over the time the little Marshal had passed through the ward of the hospital in Paris, and they had all tried to sit at attention, and the commander-in-chief had said kindly, "Don't you, mes enfants?"

Last night Cohan was talking. Cohan always talked a lot. He talked too much, and the only thing that silenced him was another fit of coughing. But Bill didn't mind. It was something to hear.

"They had heard a band playing, and cannon booming slowly, and bells tolling."

"What's that for?"

"Aw, say, what's the matter with you?" It was Cohan again. "It's The Unknown Soldier. They're going to bury him tomorrow at Arlington." There was silence. Then Cohan started up again. "Gee ain't it funny," he said, "they make all that fuss over a guy that lost 'is eye-connection' and forgot all about us?" Then he started to laugh and to cough. It was an awful sound, coughing and laughing at once. "Unknown!" gasped Cohan. "Unknown!" and he kept laughing and coughing.

Bill didn't laugh. But it was funny. Somehow it suddenly occurred to him the folks back home had forgotten all about him. He thought of

New York—An eccentric Croesus with fantastic ideas shocked New York for years with his vagaries. A son of the French "Sage King," Jacques Lebaudy, self-styled "Emperor of the Sahara," played with life, overturned prim conventions, strutted on the stage of the world in burlesque fashion.

The curtain rang down on his life when he died, pierced by five bullets at his "Lodge" at Westbury, L. I., in January, 1919. He was slain by his wife, Marie A. Lebaudy, sometimes known as the Countess de Lages.

But the erratic life of the late "Emperor" has cast a weird spell over the lives of the two beings who shared the grotesque ups and downs of his career in France and America.

Estates Tied Up. Jacqueline Lebaudy, pretty sixteen-year-old daughter of the millionaire, and heir to most of his $50,000,000 estate, would have found herself in dire want if faithful friends had not come to her mother's aid.

Legal tangles extending from the courts of Nassau county to France, Chile, Bolivia, England, South Africa and other points, have tied up the estate, and over these stupendous litigations broods the eccentric spirit of Jacques Lebaudy.

Once more the name of the millionaire, which was a synonym for comic comedy in international affairs, has burst into the public consciousness with the application of Mme. Lebaudy's attorneys for the payment of $50,000 from his estate for the education of her daughter.

The courts originally authorized payments of $2,000 a month for the child's schooling pending the settlement of the litigation. Mme. Lebaudy now asserts that she has not received any of the $2,000 payments since February, 1920.

She Taken It Gaily. But Mme. Lebaudy takes the new trouble philosophically. Nothing could possibly eclipse the miseries into which she was plunged during the time Jacques astonished the world with his vagaries.

Lebaudy owned property of immense value in Chile, France, England and this country. In 1913 he announced he would no longer limit himself to the payment of any sum than himself. When other eccentricities of his became apparent, he was confined to a hospital for treatment of mental diseases.

The year 1907 saw him in the role of an international clown, when he satisfied his craving for romantic adventures by claiming sovereignty over a part of the Sahara desert. Amid scenes of weird barbarity he had himself crowned "Emperor of the Sahara."

Seized Desert Land. With an armed expedition he set out for the arid spaces and put him self up as sovereign over 133 miles of African seaboard between Cape Bolador and Cape Juby and declared the coast and inland to be his property. This territory was partly under Spanish and partly under French rule.

His adventure created an international row. Spain, angered at the presumptions of the "Emperor," protested to France. Pike Sheridan and his French wife and two children.

"Unknown!" Perhaps it was Denny Bryan. No one ever knew what happened to Denny. "Unknown!" Perhaps it should be Denny's desert, a big funeral. His chest hurt suddenly and he coughed and weakly fell into a doze and dreamed of cannon booming and bells tolling. And this morning when the bells tolled again, he was still sleeping. Putnam, Conn. Patriot.

And so Jacqueline, living under the tender care of the nuns at the convent of Santa Marie, near Montreal, is again the central figure in the Lebaudy tragedy.

Will the millions that made possible the freak career of the "Emperor of the Sahara" finally bring back happiness to the young combat girl? took place in Delavan.

New York.—Announcing her intention to make a permanent home abroad, Mrs. Enrico Caruso, widow of the great tenor, has returned to America. She will remain here, four months, arranging business and other details left unattended to by her husband's sudden death.

"At the end of that time," she declared, "I think we shall find a place in Paris, Gloria and I."

Baby Gloria was a chattering little beauty in white furs, eager to be interviewed.

"I am very glad to be back in America again, of course," said Mrs. Caruso. "I am very glad to be back in America again, of course," said Mrs. Caruso.

"There will be no litigation of any kind about the will of Mr. Caruso," Mrs. Caruso said emphatically. "I am now and have always been on the best of terms with all members of the Caruso family and whatever has to be settled will be settled out of court."

Other amendments provide that employers shall maintain a panel of physicians from whom the injured employees may select their attendants, that the commission may institute proceedings on its own motion, and that insurance policies are to be construed as granting full coverage of the risk of an assured unless the commission has in writing consented to assurance of part of the risk only.

Locating Secondary Ignition Circuit Troubles
Short-Circuits Can Be Discovered By The Lowered Voltage They Cause

IGNITION TROUBLES IN THE BATTERY or low tension side of the system, arise mainly from faulty contacts, which interrupt the flow of the very mild electrical pressure there used, but the secondary or high-tension current, which is produced in the coil and is supposed to reach the plugs in full force and make the sparks is, on the contrary, of a decidedly "frisky" nature, always tending to leave its intended circuit and to escape, through short-circuiting, without having done its duty. Locating these points of escape, which may be in faulty coil-insulation, in the wiring or in broken down plug-cores, has always been a difficult matter, as no handy detecting device has been available. When the high tension circuit is in order, the electrical pressure builds up in it, to a high value, at the ignition instant; but when it is short-circuited, no such high pressure is realized and if means were available to indicate whether high voltage were present in any point in the circuit, it would at once appear whether a short-circuit existed or not. Most motorists will recall, from high school or college days, the gas filled "Geissler tubes," which glowed when attached to an induction coil or "static machine" and they may be interested to know that this principle is being applied in testing ignition circuits. A suitable gas filled vacuum tube, if touched to a point in the high tension circuit, will light up in proportion to the electrical pressure there present and if the point touched is short-circuited it will not glow at all. The ignition testers recently placed upon the market consist of a protected glass tube, filled with the rare gas neon, which glows an orange red at electrical pressures lower than other gases light up. Such a gauge or tester should, for instance, indicate at once that a plug-porcelain is leaking or short-circuiting the sparking current, by lighting up only slightly or not at all, when applied to the plug binding screw.

TWO SPEEDS ENGAGED AT ONCE?

G. C. asks: What can cause the universal or other part of the drive to lock, so that a car can be moved neither forward or backward? My car once became locked thus, while it was standing.

Answer: Assuming good lubrication and the bearings all right, about the only thing which could cause this locking would be some moving part of the driving system getting loose and wedging against a housing or some other part. Locking, such as you describe, sometimes occurs from a defect in the gear shifting mechanism, which permits two gears to be in mesh simultaneously. For instance, if something goes wrong with the shifting fork, high gear may be left in mesh and the lever be drawn through neutral and low gear engaged, which would prevent car motion. Sometimes brake bands fail to release, although the pedal or lever have been moved to the off position and the car is immovable until some shock releases the locked bands. You better inspect your gearshift and also make sure that your brakes release reliably.

COOLING WATER WON'T CIRCULATE

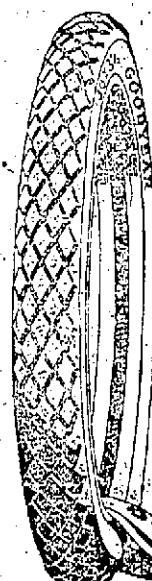

G. C. writes: The cooling water will enter the block of my engine, from the bottom of the radiator but it will not circulate from the block to the top of the radiator. All connections have been checked up and the radiator has been cleaned out thoroughly. Do you think that the pump can be so worn that its moving part slips past the water without moving it?

Answer: This pump is of the centrifugal type and we do not see how it can be worn enough to make it fail. It is possible, however, that the moving part or impeller has become loose on its shaft and does not turn at all. You better take it apart and see about this. We can think of nothing else that can cause a total failure of the circulation, although there are things that can greatly reduce it, such as the spreading of the gasket under the flanges of the intake and outflow manifolds. There have been cases of a piece of hose lining or other foreign object getting into the system and obstructing water movement.

Questions of general interest to the motorist will be answered by Mr. Clough in this column, space permitting. If an immediate answer is desired, enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Because its beauty is appreciated—but more especially because furniture is useful and durable. Larger displays of new designs comprising everything one could wish for in the gift line, gives you a wonderful selection of gifts for any member of the family or a friend. Early shoppers naturally have the advantage of larger selections.

Cheap coal means cheap quality.

Our PITTSTON hard coal and GENUINE FIEGLER FRANKLIN COUNTY SOFT COAL are the best that money can buy. We stand behind every ton. We have been here twenty years and expect to be for twenty years more—we cannot afford to send you anything but the best.

Ziegler Coal can be burned in place of hard coal in all furnaces and cook stoves. It only cost $10.00 per ton. One ton will convince you it is the best.

DON'T DELAY. ORDER TODAY.
